Featured Quilters

Ursula Sylvan

Ursula Sylvan has been quilting for about 35 years or so. German-born, she grew up in Chile before coming to the United States. Ursula learned to quilt when she joined the newly started Simi Valley Quilt Guild in Southern California. She started out by making lots of wall hangings until she ran out of walls to hang them on and then began making lap and bed quilts.

Before long, Ursula started teaching quilting at the local quilt shops. Eager to learn as much as she could, she took classes and workshops from visiting teachers through the guild as well as traveled and attended classes at larger quilt shows such as PIQF and Road to California.

When her husband Jeff retired, they moved and lived on Maui for 5 years where she got involved with the local guild and also learned about Hawaiian quilting. When grandchildren came along, they moved back to California to be near them. Once again Ursula joined the local guilds and also started teaching a variety of classes at the local quilt shops and also lecturing and teaching at other guilds.

Having experienced being new to a country without knowing the language has translated to her being more daring in choosing fabrics and pushing the colors to see how they work out. After all, it's only fabric and that can't be scary!

Ursula and her husband Jeff have been married 54 years and are enjoying both their granddaughters and their various activities. Now Ursula still takes classes from visiting teachers as well as from other teachers at the local quilt shops because "you never know what you are going to learn and you always learn something!"

Pam Toombs

Pam started her career teaching high school art and Home Economics. After a decade of teaching, Pam followed her parents lead into a 35-year career as a realtor, specializing in commercial and investment real estate in the California Central Valley. In 2007, looking for a creative outlet, Pam made her first quilt. Since that time, she has made hundreds of quilts ranging from large bed size quilts to small art quilts. Her "love" is art quilts in bright color and non-traditional styles. Many of her quilts are made from fabrics dyed or painted by Pam and inspired by photographs she has taken and places she has traveled. She has always had a passion for fabric, design and texture.

Pam has shown and sold her art work at the Carnegie Art Center in Turlock and the Mistlin Gallery in Modesto, as well as numerous quilt shows. Pam has had four quilts juried into the Cherrywood Hand Dyed Fabric Challenge. Those quilts have been shown throughout the United States and Europe. She is a member of Country Crossroads Quilters , Studio Art Quilt Association (SAQA), and Turlock Quilt Guild.

Pam lives in Turlock and has been married to her husband, Gary, for 58 years. They have two grown children and six grandchildren.
